Overview

How can centralized PV generation improve energy structures in mines?

These attributes make them an effective complement to large power grids and a substitute for 'greenfield' energy projects. Viewing such deployments as a specialized form of centralized PV generation can contribute to the optimization of energy structures in mines.

Is photovoltaic solar energy a viable alternative?

Among these, photovoltaic (PV) solar energy stands out as a promising alternative, driven by its expansive potential and economic viability<sup>2-4</sup>. The proliferation of PV installations is a global phenomenon<sup>5</sup>, with forecasts indicating a dramatic increase in solar power generation, projected to rise by 4.46 to 7.85 times by 2050 compared with 2022<sup>6,7</sup>.

Should PV systems be integrated with abandoned land in open-pit mines?

In this context, integrating PV systems with abandoned land in open-pit mines offers a mutually beneficial solution that can enhance land use while promoting renewable energy generation. This approach avoids encroaching on productive land and leverages the existing mining infrastructure.

Do centralized PV installations comprise 52% of global PV capacity?

Drawing on the IEA assessment that centralized PV installations comprise 52% of the global PV capacity, we recalculate the solar electricity generation released by the EIA for the seven distinct pathways, yielding the projected output for centralized PVs in each scenario (Fig. 2b).
