Are ham radio systems a good solution for off-grid communication?

In the past, much of the talk around off-grid communication led to HAM Radio systems as the solution. While the HAM radio is still widely used, it requires very technical knowledge to be operated efficiently, is expensive and for most set ups, is a very bulky piece of equipment to carry.

How far can a phone connect to a goTenna network?

Only phones that are paired with their own individual goTenna device will be able to join the network, so it's not like anyone can just drop into your conversation. With the goTenna Mesh, the network range from one phone to another phone (point-to-point) is 4-5 miles.
