

How to replace the battery cell of a mobile base station

Overview

How do you replace a mobile phone battery?

Set the battery eliminator between 3.7 to 4.2 Volts DC. Attach the battery to a battery eliminator (follow the user manual). Charge for 5-10 minutes. Place the battery back into the phone and check if it powers ON. Replacing or repairing your mobile phone battery can extend the life of your device and improve its overall performance.

Can a phone battery be replaced?

Don't despair, though — while modern cellphones don't come with removable batteries anymore, you can still get a replacement quite easily. The easiest way to replace your smartphone battery is to visit the brand's nearest service center or mail in your device.

How do you remove a battery from a mobile phone?

Once the back cover is removed, locate the battery connector. Use tweezers or the opening tool to gently disconnect the old battery from the phone's motherboard. Some top mobile phone manufacturers use adhesive / glue or double-sided tape to fix and secure the battery.

How do I reattach a new battery to my phone?

Start putting your phone back together when the new battery has been installed and firmly linked. Reattach any pieces you previously removed and carefully reinsert the screws. Turn the phone on to make sure that the new battery is functioning properly before fully sealing it. Verify that your phone charges as anticipated by checking the battery %.
