

South Africa uses container solar panels as roof

Overview

Could solar power power South Africa?

South Africa has many factories, warehouses, schools and hospitals — big buildings with large rooftop spaces. In such a sunny country, these flat surfaces would be perfect for large photovoltaic solar systems that could generate enough renewable energy to supply themselves and feed into the national grid.

Should South Africa have a solar system?

In such a sunny country, these flat surfaces would be perfect for large photovoltaic solar systems that could generate enough renewable energy to supply themselves and feed into the national grid. This would reduce the amount of coal that South Africa's national electricity provider would need to burn.

Should South Africa educate households on solar PV systems?

Hence, it is plausible in the South African context to argue that the government and key solar PV stakeholder like private companies need to direct more effort on educating households on solar PV systems functionality, particularly low-income households that often have limited access to such information.
